

Macquarie University – Anxiety, depression and close relationships

If you are currently in a committed heterosexual relationship, you are invited to participate in a study being conducted by psychology researchers at Macquarie University. Samantha Cuming and Dr Ron Rapee are interested in identifying the ways in which the close relationships of individuals who experience anxiety or depression differ from those who do not.

The study is intended only for current residents of Australia who are aged 18 years or over. It involves completing, in one sitting, a series of online questionnaires, which will take about 20-30 minutes. Participants will be eligible to win a randomly drawn prize of a $100 gift voucher. To find out more or participate in the survey, please click on the following link (or paste it into your internet browser): www.relationshipsresearch.com.
